Alex. H. WashburnBank Secrecy Act
Recalls Seabury
Probe of 1920s

A three-judge federal panel sitting at San Francisco ruled Tuesday that the new Bank Secrecy Act is in part "an unreasonable invasion of privacy" and therefore unconstitutional in requiring banks to report domestic transactions of customers.

In its 2 to 1 decision the court issued a temporary injunction against the domestic reporting practice but ordered the banks to continue making reports on foreign transactions to the U.S. Treasury.

The attack against domestic banking disclosures was led by the 158-member California Bankers Association with an assist from the American Civil Liberties Union.

Most Americans, fearful of government intrusion in all walks of life, will praise the San Francisco ruling. If normal banking records, like income tax returns, are not proof against political prying, coercion, and blackmail, then the days of a free citizenry are numbered.

Federal surveillance of individual banking records was unheard of until the Samuel Seabury investigation of the corrupt Tammany Hall political machine in New York City in the 1920s. This was one time when citizens agreed banking records should be disclosed.

Samuel Seabury was an upright and courageous judge whom the governor of New York picked to crack down on the graft-riddled New York City machine. He seized safe-deposit boxes and bank records and sent an army of scoundrels to prison.

A prized book in my library is "Samuel Seabury, a Challenge," by Walter Chambers, 1932, Century Co. What Seabury was up against is told in this extract from pages 330-31.

Judge Seabury was examining the New York County sheriff:

"On your salary of $6,500 a year in 1925," Judge Seabury asked, "will you tell the committee where you could have gotten $34,824?"

"Money that I saved," the sheriff replied.

"Where did you keep the money that you saved?"

"In a safe-deposit box in the house, at home."

"And, Sheriff, was that box a tin box or a wooden box?"

"A tin box."

The book continues:

"It was from the (same) box, the sheriff of New York County swore, that he got the $300,000 he deposited in six years."

Desperate measures were needed to destroy America's most vicious political machine, Tammany Hall. But this exception only proves the rule that this republic must respect the private rights of law-abiding private citizens.

It is fair comment to observe that with the passage of years some politicians have latched onto the Seabury technique in a campaign to bring all citizens under the surveillance specifically reserved for suspected criminals or agents threatening the national security.

Confidential White House report released

The money merry-go-round

WASHINGTON (AP) — Money from Mexico linked to the Watergate affair was part of $700,000 in secret Nixon campaign gifts stuffed into a suitcase and rushed to Washington in an oil company plane last spring, according to a confidential House staff report.

The document, distributed Tuesday night to members of the House Banking Committee, also said a Southwestern fund raiser for the President's campaign had contradicted denials of involvement with the Mexican transactions by chief Nixon fund raiser Maurice H. Stans.

Committee investigators said they were unable to determine if the money—$100,000 in all—actually came from Mexicans or from U.S. citizens living in that country.

But they said that on the surface it appeared the money was from foreign nationals and, if that is true, accepting it is a violation of U.S. banking laws.

The 58-page report, compiled during the past several weeks, both adds to the bizarre developments in the Democratic headquarters bugging case and vividly describes last-minute efforts by Nixon fund raisers to beat the April 7 deadline of a new elections law requiring full disclosure of campaign donors.

Despite a stern warning by committee Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., against releasing the report to newsmen, a copy was obtained by columnist Jack Anderson who made it available to The Associated Press.

A new disclosure in the report is that a total of $100,000 came from Mexico. Previously it was known that $80,000 linked to the Watergate affair was made up of four checks drawn on a Mexican bank.

Patman told committee members in a covering letter:

"The $80,000 of Mexican bank checks which went into the Republican campaign and then into the account of Bernard Barker, one of the suspects in the Watergate burglary, raises tremendous questions for the committee."

"It appears that the Committee to Re-Elect the President and its allied groups are willing to go to any lengths to conceal the identity and the origins of these checks."

It has previously been learned that the four checks drawn on the Mexican bank passed through the hands of Stans and other Nixon committee officials, then wound up in Barker's Miami bank account.

But the report provides the first account to challenge the original contention of Stans that he knew nothing about transfer of the funds which came from or passed through Mexico.

The report gives this account:

In late March and early April, a group of Nixon fund raisers in Texas, headed by William Liedtke, president of the Pennzoil Corp., were collecting contributions in the Southwest.

Liedtke told committee investigators he was approached by Robert Allen, president of Gulf Resources and Chemical Co. in Houston and Texas fund-raising chairman for Nixon, who told Liedtke he could "raise United States money in Mexico" for the campaign.

Liedtke said Stans told him he would check. That afternoon or the following morning, Stans told Liedtke it was "okay to bring the money to Washington," Liedtke told the investigators.

American plan results in more POWs

SAIGON (AP) — The American effort to compel a Vietnam settlement and free the prisoners of war by the sustained bombing of North Vietnam has resulted in a major increase in the number of POWs.

With the loss of an Air Force F4 Phantom and its two crewmen in North Vietnam Monday, the U.S. Command listed a total of 100 American airmen missing in the North since the resumption of full-scale bombing more than five months ago, on April 6. That's an average of more than four men a week.

Thirty-seven of the fliers have been reported captured.

Many of the others probably were killed.

Prior to the resumption of full-scale bombing, the Pentagon listed 412 Americans missing in North Vietnam during the war and another 388 held in prisoner of war camps in North Vietnam as of April 1.

By Sept. 2, the Pentagon's list of those missing in the North had increased to 455 and the number of captives to 425.

The U.S. Command's total of 100 missing is 20 higher than the increase in the Pentagon's total of missing and captured.

But the U.S. Command's total includes an additional week of losses and is also based on the status of a plane's crew at the time the loss of the plane was announced. It is not changed, as the Pentagon's records are, when a missing flier is declared dead or is rescued.

The U.S. Command says 93 American jets have been downed over the North since April 6.

North Vietnam has broadcast recorded messages from more than 20 pilots captured during the current campaign including some calling for an end to the bombing and the war.

One of the pilots captured during the spring, Air Force

Maj. Edward K. Elias is among three American POWs Hanoi has said it will release soon to representatives of a U.S. anti-war group.

Child, 7, hit by car

A 7-year-old Hope girl was struck by a car at 3:10 p.m. yesterday at the intersection of Sixth and S. Walker Sts., according to the city police.

Willia Topson, daughter of Mrs. Darlene Topson of 700 S. Hazel, stepped off the curb and started to cross Sixth when she was struck by a car driven by Mrs. Ora Reinhardt, 53, of Hope. Mrs. Reinhardt was driving west on Sixth at the time of the accident.

The girl suffered a broken leg and other injuries, according to a Branch hospital spokesman, and is still confined to the hospital.

No charges were filed. The investigating officers were city policemen Joe McCulley and James Neel.

John:
A lawyer at 75

It took John F. Williamson 10 years and more than $500, but he finally realized his dream.

For Williamson, a native of Hope, the "dream" was completion of a home study course in law, and the receiving of a bachelor of law degree from LaSalle Extension University of Chicago.

The fact that Williamson is 75-years-old takes little of the pleasure out of his accomplishment.

A resident of Milwaukee, he was visiting friends and relatives in Hope when word came that he had successfully completed the home study requirements and would receive a diploma.

Williamson, who was a timber dealer in Hempstead County for a number of years before moving north, had two years of college at the Haygood Industrial College at Pine Bluff—"in about 1925-26," he said. About 15 years ago, he decided to try to get a law degree, "because it's just something I've always wanted to do."

He said he originally signed up with The American School of Law in Chicago, but later "the money end of it got pretty tight, so I was forced to drop it.

"But then I got the money accumulated to continue the course, but by that time, the school had merged with LaSalle, and I wrote to them. You know what they did? They sent me No. 1, Vol. 1 and I started again at the stump."

Williamson, a tall (6-3), lanky black with a ready smile and soft manner, plans to take the bar examination when he returns to Milwaukee. And, he said, he would like to try a few cases "just to see how they go." He laughed.

"Mostly, though, I would like to be an advisor, advising people on the right thing to do. Yes, sir, that's what I want to be, a legal advisor."

Williamson is one of 11 children—one brother, S. W. Williamson, a retired schoolteacher, lives at Hope, three other brothers live at Washington, and one is at Ashdown.

"Yes, sir," John Williamson said, "An educated man sure can visit a bunch of relatives down here in this neck of the woods."

Both John and S. W. laughed uproariously, clapped each other on the back and went into the house.

A happy man

Incumbents defeated in primariesBy WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

Two elders of the House of Representatives, both of them committee chairmen, have been defeated in Democratic primary elections.

Rep. Wayne N. Aspinall, chairman of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, lost in Colorado's 4th District to Alan Merson, a University of Denver law professor just half his age.

John Jenrette, 36, a member of the state legislature, narrowly beat Rep. John McMillan in a runoff primary in the 6th District of South Carolina Tuesday. McMillan is chairman of the House District of Columbia Committee. A recount of that race seems certain. Jenrette's margin was less than 600 votes.

In New Hampshire, conservative challenger Meldrim Thompson defeated Gov. Walter Peterson in a neck-and-neck Republican primary.

With returns from all the state's towns and wards counted, the vote was 43,398 for Thompson and 41,231 for the governor.

Roger Crowley, the Democratic nominee for governor two years ago, won that nomination again in a three-way race.

Next door in Vermont, Luther Hackett, 39, an insurance agent, a former state legislator, and the evident preference of retiring Gov. Deane C. Davis, won the Republican nomination for governor.

Revenue-sharing: Bill passes the Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $33.6-billion revenue-sharing bill, one of the landmark measures of the 92nd Congress, has passed the Senate 63 to 20 despite the misgivings of many members.

The bill was approved Tuesday night after a 12-hour session and sent to conference with the House to iron out major differences in the versions passed by the two branches.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., Senate manager of the bill, said he hopes the conference can begin Thursday and can reach quick agreement.

If that happens, the first payments to 39,000 eligible states, cities, counties and townships could be sent out by the federal Treasury in October.

Several senators said they could not conscientiously vote for the bill at a time when federal deficits have mounted to $100 billion in four years.

But, in an election year, the majority took the opportunity to help put into effect the first broad program to turn back federal tax revenues to state and local governments on a no-strings basis.

The major difference between the Senate and House bills involves the formula for distributing the funds.

The Senate bill generally favors the poorer, less-populous states; the House measure the urban, industrialized ones.

However, the Senate version gives more than the House bill to the central cities and much less to the suburbs.

Another important difference lies in a provision added by the Senate Finance Committee which chose the bill as a vehicle to try to halt the spiraling cost of social services for welfare recipients and potential recipients.

This provision, as shaped in the final bill, would limit the program to $1.6 billion.

The ceiling compares with $4.6 billion which the administration estimates the states will seek this year under the present open-ended program.

The provision would drastically curtail social services now provided in many large states.

Some senators from these states said their constituents actually would lose under the bill because they would be cut more on social services than they would get from revenue sharing.

These senators sought to change the distribution formula to get more for industrialized states, but failed because the bill, as it came from the Senate Finance Committee, benefited 33 states, compared with the House version, while only 17 were losers.

Long, however, conceded that the $1.6-billion social-services ceiling might be raised in the conference with the House.

Opponents of the legislation argued not only that the federal government hasn't the money to pay for it but also that local officials might fritter much of the money away.

They emphasized that the legislation would provide no great relief because it would amount to an average 4 per cent of local budgets.

The program would be retroactive to last Jan. 1 and would end Dec. 31, 1976.

Bryant slammed by Climer, charges failure in office

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Jerome Climer, Republican candidate for secretary of state, said Tuesday that Secretary of State Kelly Bryant "has failed in fulfilling his responsibility as keeper of information about our state."

Climer said in a prepared statement that high school and college students find it "impossible to study Arkansas heritage, government, economy, sociology, politics, folklore and culture in a systematic manner because Arkansas does not have a depository of data."

"A state cannot progress without good information about its past, its present ideals, chalenges and resources, and its future aspirations..." Climer said.

So Climer proposed creation of an Arkansas Institute designed to "encourage and assist the study of all aspects of Arkansas history."

He said the institute would be composed of all institutions of higher education, various branches of state governments, foundations and business institutions and would be funded by taking advantage of available federal funds, charging fees for services to nonmembers, grants from foundations, and tuitions for specific educational activities.

Climer said the institute should assemble copies of all material concerning Arkansas and then distribute microfilm copies of the material to all universities, colleges and central libraries for governmental agencies.

He also said the institute should aid in research activities "to see that all pertinent data is made available and that the research does not duplicate previous studies at a waste in time or money."

The candidate called for summer seminars in varied subjects related to Arkansas and said that on the college level the institute should sponsor a Chair of Arkansas Studies to be rotated from college to college.

Woman escapes from abductors unharmed

MARSHALLVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Threatened with the death twice during 12 hours as a hostage following a bank robbery, a 20-year-old woman ran screaming for help and escaped from her abductors unharmed.

Barbara Pritchett, taken hostage at gunpoint after the robbery of City Hall and the First State Bank of Marshallville Tuesday morning, said, "They were going to kill me twice." Miss Pritchett, a Georgia Southwestern College student who had taken a summer job at the bank as a teller, said she was led into the woods of a 7,000-acre farm by a belt tightened around her neck before she escaped Tuesday night.

She said that when her abductors loosened the belt and huddled together for warmth in a thicket Tuesday night, she ran screaming toward the lights of police cars along Georgia 224 between Montezuma and Perry.

Police later captured one man, who was not immediately identified.

An FBI agent said that warrants had been issued for Robert Bonner of Atlanta and Gloria Williams, address unknown.

Miss Pritchett was taken to a Montezuma hospital for treatment of abrasions and for observation.

Nita Lockerman, the hostess's sister, said Miss Pritchett told her that once, when law enforcement officers neared the abductors' hiding place Tuesday, one of the men considered shooting her, and that later the woman spoke of "cutting her all up" with a knife.

The bank was held up shortly after it opened Tuesday morning, and when police appeared, Miss Pritchett was taken hostage.

Miss Pritchett told her sister that the abductors hid in a thicket all day, most of the time within shouting distance of the search parties.

Fear of Israeli attack voiced

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Lebanon's premier expressed fear Tuesday of a new Israeli attack as U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim called for General Assembly action against terrorism.

"From an evaluation of the situation we cannot say that last week's Israeli attack would be the last," Premier Saeb Salam told the Lebanese Parliament.

His fears apparently were based on reports of continuing Israeli troop concentrations along Lebanon's southern borders and of new Israeli threats to strike at the Arab terrorists. Salem said the Lebanese army has clear orders "to do the utmost to repel any Israeli aggression, at any price."

Israeli war planes attacked Palestinian positions in Lebanon and Syria last Friday in retaliation for the Olympics massacre in Munich Tuesday in which 11 Israelis, five Arab terrorists and a West German policeman were killed.

Premier Golda Meir told the Israeli parliament Tuesday that Israel will strike against Arab terrorists with all its strength and skill. With only the Communists abstaining, the legislators supported "the government's right to defend its emissaries and citizens wherever they may be."

The U.N. chief told a news conference in New York that the United Nations "cannot be a mute spectator" to increasing violence. But he acknowledged that any antiterrorism resolution will face difficulties in the 27th General Assembly convening Tuesday.

Waldheim said it is up to the Assembly to find measures to deal with the kidnapping and killing of diplomats and increasing acts of terror in the world. Acting on his own initiative, he submitted a proposal last Friday that the 132-nation assembly take action.

The Soviet Union and China vetoed attempts in the 15-nation Security Council Sunday to link the Munich slayings to the reprisal strikes Israel conducted against Syria and Lebanon. The United States then vetoed a resolution calling for a Middle East cease-fire but making no mention of terrorism.

Foreign ministers of the 10 European Common Market countries met in Rome and agreed to take a united stand on any proposal against terrorism put before the United Nations.

The West German government was busy trying to repair the damage done to its relations with Arab governments by the German anger over the Munich attack. The Egyptian press reported that Ambassador-designate Hans George Selzer had called on Foreign Minister Mohamed Hassan El Zayyat Tuesday and told him, "My country cannot accuse or hold any specific Arab country responsible for the Munich incident."

He also appealed to all Arab governments to take "necessary measures towards preventing possible violent actions that may be taken against German interests and organizations," the reports said.

Kissinger in Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger remained in Moscow today for an extra day of secret talks with Kremlin leaders before flying to London and Paris.

The U.S. Presidential adviser had been scheduled to spend today sightseeing in Leningrad. The U.S. Embassy announced Tuesday that Kissinger would continue his talks in Moscow until his departure for London Thursday.

No reason for the change was given and no information was provided on Kissinger's talks with the Russians, who presumably included Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev.

It was assumed that the war in Vietnam as well as European and Soviet-American issues were under discussion.

The Soviet press gave prominent coverage Tuesday to the Viet Cong peace statement this week asserting once again that a South Vietnamese coalition government could be formed which neither the Communists nor the Saigon regime would dominate. Both Saigon and U.S. officials said they found nothing new in the statement.

There was speculation that after his talks with the Russians and with British and French officials, Kissinger would meet in Paris Friday with Le Duc Tho, the North Vietnamese Politburo member who is his government's chief peace negotiator.

The White House announced that Kissinger will be received in London by Prime Minister Edward Heath and in Paris by President Georges Pompidou. He will tell them about his Moscow talks as "part of our continuing pattern of close consultations with European allies," White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said.

Merredythe Blezard, starting her sophomore year as an art major at Smith College this fall, also has her own company, "Hollycraft," which produces handmade macrame belts and handbags that are sold in boutiques and specialty stores across the country. Her employees are almost all high school and college students.

"It all started," said this pretty working girl and student, "when my father came home with a strand of cord which he had just produced, plunked it down on the kitchen table and said to me, 'See what you can do with this.'"

She made a belt. And since that first belt she has become a macrame expert and loves what she is doing. Aside from her own business, Merredythe has designed a macrame craft kit for one of the leading toy companies. She has also been asked to work for a toy manufacturer as a designer at a nice, fat salary but prefers to do that kind of thing as a Moonlighting venture and work chiefly with her own company—majoring in art at school at the same time.

"I work at school during off-hours, at home and even at my father's factory."

She's now working on a huge ecology flag and has to go to the factory to handle the big job.

"The cord runs 18 feet long," she said, "and I have to work on a platform that can be raised or lowered."

Merredythe believes macrame is a quick and simple way to make pretty things—and money. "The mark-up is fantastic," she said. "We have one belt that we sell for $7. It should sell in the stores for about $14. But some stores charge $24—and get it."

Incidentally, she also designs crewel kits and stuffed animals for toy makers. One of her most delightful macrame items was a matching dog collar and lead "ensemble" in bright red.

Macrame has an interesting history. The work comes from a 19th century Arabic term, "miqramah" which means veil and the Turkish word for towel, "maqramah." In those days, both the veil and the towel were adorned with a knotted fringe.

Macrame as a craft dates way, way back almost to primitive times. In ancient Egypt it was used in funeral decorations. It has been found in the tombs of the pharaohs. The Incas of Peru knew the art and in classical Greece, macrame knots were used for slings for broken bones. The Greeks also used macrame design on their clothing, jewelry and pottery. It was supposed to have a magical quality.

"It was the sailor who first brought macrame to distant ports around the world," Miss Blezard said. "Ship decks, hand rails and steering wheels were decorated with this art. He also made little items he could barter with on land. In English sailor's language it became known as 'McNamara's Lace' or 'square knotting,'" she added.

"Once you've mastered a few knots (Merredythe taught a 73-year-old aunt to do macrame in 10 minutes), the craft is very easy. The only necessary equipment is the cord for knotting." She prefers not to use the standard pins and a working surface.

"My favorite way of work-

Eighteen-year-old entrepreneur Merredythe Blezard wears a navy blue macrame vest she created (left) in about four hours and she displays her macrame "ecology belt" in superfish design.

ing is to throw the cord over the top of a door, close the door and start knotting." She works in the beginning standing on a chair.

Merredythe says she can make an elaborate peasant belt that sells in stores for about $20 in a matter of 50 minutes. She has created some fascinating wall hangings, hat bands, handbags, plant holders and window shades.

Caprolan is Merredythe's favorite cord to use for her work. "It can be handled so easily and comes in such pretty colors," says Miss Macrame, herself. "Jute," she said, "cuts your hands when you work. Cotton cord comes in very few colors. It's mostly a natural off-white. And rayon braided cord, which can also be used, is frequently cotton stuffed. It comes apart quickly, even while you work on it, and the finished item isn't pretty anymore."

The energy of this girl is boundless. Her next project will be a six by three foot hammock in macrame which she says she can make in about eight hours. That should go for over $100. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Types of Depression Described
DEAR READERS:

Each day I receive letters which say in many ways: "I feel so lost—is it normal to be this depressed?" Since the Thomas Eagleton fiasco, such questions have increased, with an added worry, "Will I be marked forever if I go to a hospital for treatment?" The answer is "No!" We're not in the dark ages. Polls indicated the American people backed Eagleton three to one, remember?

The National Association for Mental Health has an excellent bulletin on "Depression," which I'd like to share with you:

Depression is an emotional state of dejection and sadness, ranging from mild discouragement and downheartedness to feelings of utter hopelessness and despair.

Mild depression is characterized by unhappiness, pessimism and discouragement. One suffering from this often feels inadequate, loses interest in the social environment. Such depression is normal, a condition of existence.

Mild depression frequently progresses to a MODERATE stage in which the same characteristics are exhibited in such a degree that it will interfere with social functioning. Conversation is difficult. The inability to think, feelings of unreality and bewilderment and various physical disturbances are also common complaints.

When the degree of depression becomes severe, there are marked changes in behavior, manifested in a decreased interest in everything. Initiative is lost, there is a preoccupation with guilt and unworthiness. Suicidal thoughts come.

Depression is not necessarily related to mental illness. It is one of the most widespread emotions occurring in normal life—usually traceable to loneliness, social or business setbacks or a loss of perspective due to fatigue or stress. Such depressions are generally transient, either subsiding spontaneously or as a result of short-term therapy.

Depression, however, may be an illness... A sense of guilt, sin and remorse are more common in this form than in the externally induced depressions.

There are three main treatments for depression: 1. psychotherapy, 2. Drugs, and 3. electroshock therapy.

Psychotherapy is useful for treating mild cases of depression "talking through" the problem with a neutral figure will help the patient regain some self-esteem and self-understanding.

Drugs (anti-depressants and tranquilizers) are also used for treatment of depression. Although use is widespread, their effectiveness may vary. Drugs are easily administered on an out-patient basis.

Most depressed persons requiring treatment do not require constant supervision and can remain at home. The exceptions are those patients who are extremely suicidal and those being treated by electroshock therapy. Used for moderate and severe depressions, electroshock therapy is effective (about 90 per cent). The treatment is safe and a short course (a matter of days or a month) of treatments produces dramatic improvements.

The assumption of normal activities by countless thousands of people who have been successfully treated for depression is compelling evidence that the existence of an episode of depression in a person's medical history should be considered in the same manner as a wide range of other successfully treated illnesses.—NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR MENTAL HEALTH

TO ALL THOSE WHO SUFFER FROM MORE THAN TRANSIENT DEPRESSIONS: If you feel your "down" periods are no longer "mild"—if they are closing you off to life—consult a doctor. After checking you for physical imbalances, he may or may not refer you to a psychotherapist. Whatever, you CAN be helped, and you won't be stigmatized (except by a very few). Too many others have travelled the same road.—H.

Arkansas hurdler witnesses unusual incidents at Munich

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Thomas Hill, former Arkansas State University hurdler, not only won a bronze medal in the Olympic games but also had a front row seat in the unusual incidents that took place before and during the games in Munich.

Hill, who won the bronze in the 110-meter hurdles, was only 200 to 300 meters from the building where Arab terrorists killed two Israelis and took nine members of the Israeli team hostage last Wednesday. The Arabs and the hostages later died in a shootout with German police.

On Thursday, two of Hill's friends, Vince Matthews and Wayne Collett, became embroiled in an incident involving alleged disrespect to the American flag and national anthem.

In the week prior to the Olympics, Hill was involved in the reaction of black American athletes to the inclusion of the Rhodesian team in the Olympics.

Hill returned to Jonesboro during the weekend and talked about the events.

He said that on the morning when the Arabs broke into the building where the Israeli athletes were quartered, "We woke up ... there were police all around the place, so there was nothing to do but believe that everything was there and everything was real."

"All of the athletes just tried to stick with their schedules," Hill said.

"They (the Arabs) were holding them in there and there was really nothing we could do," Hill said. "They were holding them and weren't going to turn them loose, so we just tried to stay out of it."

"I never thought they would release them," Hill said, "because when they first came in they killed two people right off the bat."

"They didn't ask any questions," he said. "... they just jumped in and killed two people. So, they're losers already. Even if they (the Arabs) had got what they wanted, they wouldn't have turned those people loose because they had murdered two people already and were going to get the rap for that anyway."

Shortly after Hill won his bronze medal Thursday, Matthews and Collett finished one-two in the 400 meter race. When Matthews and Collett went to the victory stand, Collett was barefooted and both of them talked and moved around during the playing of the anthem. When they stepped down from the platform and moved toward the locker room, the crowd booed them.

The next day the International Olympic Committee barred both runners from future Olympic Games and barred them from running on the United States' 1,600-meter relay team.

"The IOC based its action on Matthews' and Collett's supposedly disrespect for the flag and anthem on the stand," Hill said.

"They (Matthews and Collett) were not wrong or out of place Hill said. "People are going to make out of the incident what they want to see. If they want to see something bad in it then they will see something bad in it. People have been talking about the protest angle but it wasn't a protest."

"I know Wayne and Vince personally well enough to know the type of guys they are and to me that was just Vince and Wayne. I didn't take it any other way, it was just Vince and Wayne."

Bench hits grand slam homer

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Every team needs a bench to win a pennant. The Cincinnati Reds have one with a capital "B" and he's not your everyday Johnny, either.

Johnny Bench continued to do what comes naturally Tuesday night, hitting a grand slam home run and driving in five runs in all as the Reds defeated the Atlanta Braves 7-5.

The catcher-outfielder now has 32 homers and 106 runs batted in and the Reds have a fat 7½-game lead in the West over the Houston Astros, who were idle Tuesday.

Elsewhere, the Pittsburgh Pirates clouted the Chicago Cubs 7-0 and rocketed to a 13-game advantage in the East; the San Francisco Giants defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 in 10 innings; the Montreal Expos turned back the St. Louis Cardinals 7-2 and the New York Mets timmed the Philadelphia Phillies 4-3.

Bench's grand slam in the first inning — the second of his career — staked Wayne Simpson to a 4-0 lead. But Simpson and reliever Pedro Borbon couldn't hold the advantage as the Braves rallied to tie the game with four runs in the fifth inning. The Reds needed Cesar Geronimo's home run and Bench's RBI bouncer in a three-run ninth to pull it out.

Roberto Clemente, Richie Hebner and Rennie Stennett each cracked three hits to lead the Pirates over the second-place Cubs.

Hebner drove in three runs as Dock Ellis and Dave Gulisti combined on an eight-hitter for the Pirates. It was Ellis' fourth triumph in five decisions against Chicago this year.

20 year reign of Brundage is over

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Lord Killanin is the new president of the International Olympic Committee and the 20-year reign of Avery Brundage officially is over.

Killanin received the keys to the Olympic Village, the IOC headquarters, in a quiet 15-minute ceremony Tuesday. In a short speech, he said he would back efforts to "deflate ultranationalism," which had marred past Olympic Games.

The 58-year-old Irish peer told newsmen that the big nations use the Games to show their systems are better than any other.

"I do not think it shows you have a better way of life if you win a lot of medals," Killanin said. He mentioned the United States and the Soviet Union as countries which use the Games for political purposes.

Brundage, 84, who has been praised their athletes' performances in the Munich Olympics as a victory for the "Socialist" system.

In Moscow, Izvestia, the government newspaper, said the fact the Russians won more gold medals than the Americans proved the "Socialist" system is better.

In Washington, Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said the Olympic Games serve no useful purpose and should be abolished.

"Their idea is being dissipated more rapidly with the passing of time," Mansfield said. "Even the refereeing is getting a nationalist tinge."

Mackey consults lawyer, Thomas can't be found

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The status of both Duane Thomas and John Mackey was uncertain today, with the start of the National Football League season just four days away, but Mackey was talking about his situation, and, of course, Thomas couldn't be found.

Mackey, the Baltimore Colts' veteran tight end, said Tuesday he was consulting his lawyer on his position with the team. He said the Colts refused to place him on waivers and also would not give him his outright release.

The Colts had announced Monday that the nine-year veteran, who was voted the best tight end in the first 50 years of pro football, was retiring. Mackey immediately denied he was leaving the game. The problem initially began when Tom Mitchell moved ahead of Mackey as the first-stringer and was named by coach Don McCafferty to start Sunday's season opener against St. Louis.

Thomas, the talented running back who starred in Dallas' drive to the Super Bowl championship last season, never has reported to the San Diego Chargers, the team to which the Cowboys dealt him six weeks ago.

The fact that Thomas did not report appears to be San Diego's loophole. The Chargers do not have to count Thomas on their official 40-man NFL roster because he did not take part in their training camp.

San Diego gave up running back Mike Montgomery and wide receiver Billy Parks to get Thomas. Now, under league rules which prevent a club being penalized by a player who does not report, the Chargers' roster does not have to include Thomas, nor does San Diego have to release him outright or put him on waivers.

Thomas was unavailable for comment.

As the 26 teams reduced their rosters to make the 40-player limit, a number of veterans were released. Detroit cut running back Nick Eddy, a former Notre Dame standout. New England released kicker Charlie Gogolak and punter-receiver Pat Studt. Cleveland cut safety Ernie Kellerman and signed veteran receiver Gloster Richardson, and Philadelphia waived kicker Happy Feller and returned running back Jim "Cannonball" Butler to Atlanta.

Tackle Dave Foley, a former No. 1 draft choice, was waived by the New York Jets and claimed by the Buffalo Bills, who also claimed defensive lineman Don Croft from Baltimore.

Can UCLA avoid the snake Pitt?

NEW YORK (AP) — Can UCLA, fresh from a stunning upset of top-rated Nebraska, avoid the snake-Pitt this weekend?

"You can say UCLA's beating Nebraska was a fluke, or whatever you want," says Pitt Coach Carl DePasqua, "but we don't consider it a fluke. They had the opportunities and they put points on the board."

Pitt, a loser to nationally ranked Florida State in its opener, stunned UCLA 29-25 in Los Angeles a year ago and DePasqua hopes he can surprise the Bruins again.

"UCLA is a highly disciplined, far better offensive team than last year," he points out. "They have better backs ... They're a very, very sound team and they execute will offensively."

"We had the same opportunities against Florida State but we couldn't get in there. I feel like a guy going in the ring against Joe Frazier every weekend."

Thus informed, here is the upset special of the week—Pitt over UCLA.

Now that the laughter has subsided, please remember that our opening week mark was .765—including Southern Cal over Arkansas.

Penn State at Tennessee—This game originally was scheduled for Memphis on Dec. 9. Penn State realized some time ago that the December date would fall in the middle of final exams and suggested switching the game to Sept. 9 in Pennsylvania or Sept. 16 at night in Knoxville—not wanting to play in Knoxville's afternoon heat and knowing full well that Neyland Stadium didn't have lights. It has lights now. Tennessee.

Texas A&M at Nebraska—Bob Devaney thinks it may be tough to get the Cornhuskers back up after the loss to UCLA. "That's always a problem when you have a long streak and suffer a loss," he says. "But I feel they will come back and go on to have a good season. Texas A&M is a good football team, possibly as good as UCLA. They may even be better. I really mean that. They have more experienced backs than UCLA." The pick, therefore, is ... Nebraska.

Oregon State at Southern California—The Trojans are No. 1 and want to stay there, although there might be a let-down after that rout of Arkansas. Nevertheless ... Southern Cal.

Arizona State at Houston—"I think we'll be a little better this week," Houston's Bill Yeoman said after last week's 14-13 loss to Rice. They'd better be. Arizona State.

Utah State at Oklahoma—State's pass-happy Tony Adams against Oklahoma's fearsome ground game. Aggies will have it somewhat tougher than they did in last year's tour of Japan. Oklahoma.

Florida State at Miami, Fla.—Gary Huff's arm against Chuck Foreman's legs. Florida State.

1972 may be year of Falcon breakthrough

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta's six-year battle of expansion frustration in the National Football League appears to have ended and 1972 looms as the year of the Falcons' big breakthrough.

Coach Norm Van Brocklin, a stern Dutchman, insisted throughout the training camp that this was the best team in Falcon history.

Some Atlanta fans began snickering over that after Atlanta had dropped its first four preseason games, but Van Brocklin stuck by his word.

The organization shocked some people less than two weeks before the season opener when it unloaded a pair of starters—tackle Malcolm Sinder and running back Jim "Cannonball" Butler, the club's all-time rushing leader—in trades for Green Bay's Dave Hampton and Philadelphia's Tony Baker.

The trades were made to strengthen and add depth to the running back spot, thought to be one of the Falcon weaknesses.

Van Brocklin waited until the final exhibition game to turn loose his starters and they responded with a 44-14 shelling of Cincinnati last Saturday night as second-year running back Joe Profit exploded for 169 yards on 21 carries.

Profit, a 204-pounder from Northeast Louisiana, saw action in only four games in 1971 before being sidelined for the season with a knee injury.

"We're ready to play now, Van Brocklin said. "This was what training camp was all about."

Atlanta churned to a 7-4-1 record in the National Conference West last year. It was the team's first winning season, but still it finished third in the division behind San Francisco and Los Angeles.

The Falcons have legitimate hopes of reaching the playoffs this fall because of a schedule break that has them playing only a few of the predicted powers.

Bob Berry is established as the quarterback, coming off his best season when he led the NFL with a 60 per cent pass completion percentage. He hit on 136 of 226 passes for 2,006 yards and 11 touchdowns.

Profit, Hampton, Baker and Art Malone will carry the running back burden while the receiving corps is the most promising yet because of added experience—Jim Mitchell, Wes Chesson and Ken Burrow.

The Falcon defense is established, headed by such NFL stars as ends Claude Humphrey and John Zook and linebacker Tommy Nobis.

Rotella named AP's Lineman of the Week

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee's Jamie Rotella says he was bent on disproving against Georgia Tech last Saturday preseason talk that line-backer was going to be one of the Vols' weakest positions this season.

And disprove it he did as he and his defensive mates forced Tech into eight turnovers—five fumbles and three pass interceptions—for a 34-3 rout of the Yellow Jackets.

For his exploits in the nationally televised game Rotella has been named Associated Press National Lineman of the Week.

The 220-pound senior from Verona, N.J., made eight individual tackles, assisted on three others, intercepted a pass, forced a fumble and helped recover another Tech fumble.

"Jamie's play was virtually flawless," said Tennessee defensive coach Lon Herzbrun. "I graded him 91 per cent and that's the highest grade I ever gave a linebacker."

"I feel sort of funny getting an award when there were plays where our front four took out all the interference and I made tackles without seeing a blocker," Rotella said. Rotella calls the defensive signals for Tennessee. But his teammates say his leadership extends to the offensive unit.

An incident that occurred in the Tech game illustrates the point.

Sophomore quarterback Con-dredge Holloway, playing in his first college game, threw a second period pass which Tech's Mike McKemie grabbed in the flat and raced 63 yards to the Tennessee 6.

When Holloway returned to the bench, Rotella went to him, draped an arm around his shoulder and said:

"We're all behind you, Con-dredge. If you quit after making a mistake, that's the sign of a loser. A winner is one who comes back after making a mistake."

ABA merger threatened

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The American Basketball Association won't draft college underclassmen, but its commissioner says chances for merger with the rival National Basketball Association may be threatened by legislation designed to permit that merger.

League trustees voted 9-0 in a special meeting Tuesday against drafting underclassmen, said Commissioner Robert Carlson.

Prior ABA signings of college undergraduates have led to considerable criticism from the older league, but Carlson said Tuesday's action was not taken with the possible merger of the leagues in mind.

Asked if not drafting underclassmen would be a permanent league policy, Carlson said only that the trustees seemed very firm in their decision.

Only the Virginia Squires were not represented at the meeting.

Rae says chance was 'worth waiting for'

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

For two years and 22 games Mike Rae waited for his chance. Last Saturday was worth waiting for.

Rae's passing—18 of 24 for 261 yards—set up two touchdowns, and he scored once on a five-yard run as eighth-ranked Southern California walloped fourth-ranked Arkansas 31-10.

"I'm looking forward to the Arkansas game," Rae said during preseason practice. "It will give us a chance to face Joe Ferguson, who's a leading candidate for Heisman Trophy honors. If we do well, the team and individual recognition will come."

How right he was. Team recognition came when the Trojans were selected as the top team in this week's Associated Press college football poll.

Individual recognition came today as Rae was named National College Back of the Week for his performance against the highly touted Razorbacks.

"He did exactly what we wanted him to," said Coach

John McKay. "He did an excellent job. There's more to being a good quarterback than just throwing the ball. Mike did an excellent job of calling the plays, too."

He also kicked the extra point after each of Southern Cal's four touchdowns and added a 26-yard field goal.

Rae, a 6-foot-1, 190-pound senior from Lakewood, Calif., spent the last two seasons as backup behind his friend and road roommate, Jimmy Jones, but it didn't discourage him.

"I had the obligation to try to press him as much as I could and try to make him a better quarterback for the good of the team," Rae explained.

Honorable mention for Back of the Week went to running backs Terry Henley of Auburn, Doug Gerhart of William & Mary, Doyle Orange of Southern Mississippi, Mark Green of Texas A&M and Larry Cates of Western Michigan; quarterbacks David Jaynes of Kansas, Mark Harmon of UCLA and Tony Adams of Utah State and defensive back Conrad Graham of Tennessee.

Commission reports on Attica

NEW YORK (AP) — A special state commission that investigated last year's bloody Attica prison riot has concluded that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller should have gone to the prison before ordering a police assault on the rebel inmates.

The 518-page report, issued to coincide with today's anniversary of the assault, traces the origins, course and aftermath of the rebellion. Overall, 43 persons lost their lives in the uprising, the bloodiest in American prison history.

Rockefeller issued a three-paragraph statement Tuesday praising the commission for a "monumental job of investigating and reporting" but did not comment on its finding that he should have gone to the upstate prison. The commission did not blame him for the deaths.

The report was highly critical of the officials who planned the assault, officials who spread false reports of prisoner atrocities, the "vengeful reprisals" against the prisoners and the prison system itself.

Among the major points made by the nine-member commission, appointed by the chief judge of the Court of Appeals on Rockefeller's instructions, were the following:

—The riot was not planned but erupted spontaneously among a new breed of prisoners that the commission said are largely black and unwilling to accept the "petty humiliations and racism that charac-terize prison life."

—Negotiating efforts by a citizens committee were not planned and the committee was "wrecked by ideological differences between those who identified completely with the inmates and those who were proponents of the position of the state."

—Media coverage of the negotiations created an "air of unreality" and encouraged rhetoric rather than reasonable dialogue.

—Despite the inmates' repeatedly expressed fear of reprisals, no effective steps were taken "to see that reprisals did not occur and no satisfactory explanation has been given for that failure."

Shriver attacks Nixon and Agnew

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Sargent Shriver, ending a frantic 3,000-mile day of campaigning, says it would be "a psychiatric case for someone to analyze" why President Nixon is afraid of his name and "afraid of the word Republican."

The Democratic vice presidential candidate used that language in a midnight rally at the El Paso Airport Tuesday.

He told a crowd of about 450 persons, who had been waiting for him for hours, that the President is "afraid" to use his own name and party label in

"The Committee for the Re-election of the President," Nixon's main campaign organization.

Republican leaders have said the only reason the name of the re-election group was not changed to include Nixon's name after the Republican convention last month was that it would have cost too much money.

Shriver, who has said previously that he wants to be "the healing potion, not the cutting edge" of the Democratic drive for the presidency.

WELL, THE KIDS SEEM to be having a good time, anyway. But then nobody ever said being an animal was exciting, whether you're a plain old working class horse in Colorado, left, or a fancy show dog named "Kulney Klutch" in Wisconsin.

Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb

Dear Dr. Lamb—I would like to know how long penicillin tablets are good. About four years ago I had an abscessed tooth and my dentist prescribed penicillin tablets to bring down the swelling. I had about six left over and put them in my medicine cabinet. Are they still good?

Dear Reader—Throw them away. Penicillin tablets are usually considered to be safe if stored properly only for about two years. Your letter points up a very important problem with medicine. The shelf life, or how long a medicine is effective, varies a great deal. Personally, I think every bottle of medicine that is given to a patient should have an expiration date or a statement effective only until, and then a specific date stamped on the label.

Don't underestimate the importance of this. The housewives in the nation raised Cain because foods aren't dated and they have a valid point. I submit, however, that the medicines that are taken for illnesses are just as important as food. Usually a person's health, and how well he responds to treatment of an illness, depends on his taking medicine which has not deteriorated from age.

Doctors could probably help solve this problem by writing on their prescription pad, "please label with expiration date for usefulness." The reason doctors often don't do this is they expect their patients to take the medicine that has been prescribed for them. Thus the doctor prescribes just the amount of medicine he wants the patient to have and there should be none left over. Doctors are trusting souls and we often think that our patients take the things we give them. The truth is, they often don't or they take the medicine they have been given for a few days and after they feel better they stop even though they haven't taken the full course of treatment. Not only can this be dangerous to the individual's health, but it provides a ready stock of unused medicine. Your situation is a good example.

This is one of the ways a lot of dangerous medicines are available for children or to be taken by mistake. Just remember, old medicine is often not good medicine. Throw away all medicine that your doctor has prescribed for you that you have not used.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Do you consider eating sunflower seeds harmful to your health? My granddaughter, who is in her teens, likes them so well she eats them by the pack.

Dear Reader—No, they're not harmful, provided she can afford that many calories. If they've been prepared by being roasted in oils, they'll have more grease and obviously contain more calories. The oil in raw sunflower seeds is very rich in polyunsaturated fats and contains very few saturated fats. To the extent that there is an advantage to eating the vegetable polyunsaturated fats as opposed to the animal saturated fats, they may even be beneficial.

The railroaders you never see.

Times have changed in railroading. The cars are new, the engines are new, and above all, incredible changes behind the scenes are new.

Most people think that railroaders are just those people they see running a train. But when it comes right down to it, the total railroad team consists of hundreds of people—people you never see.

Today's railroad consists of machinists and mechanics; car-controllers and clerks; computer programmers and track inspectors—we could go on and on.

The point is, hundreds of people are conducting thousands of safety inspections and checks every day on trains, tracks and signals.

Today's trains are getting safer all the time, and the proof is in railroaders you may never see—people you can count on.

The Railroads of Arkansas are pulling for you.

McGovern: 'I've turned the corner'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — With Sen. Edward M. Kennedy at his side and his most hectic day of campaigning just completed, George McGovern said he has turned the corner and is climbing in his bid to replace Richard Nixon in the White House.

Despite the President's efforts to wind down the war in Southeast Asia, McGovern said Tuesday night, "I continue to be amazed at how strong the reaction is against the war ... It remains a dominant worry to people everywhere."

McGovern and Kennedy were scheduled to address rallies in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia today following Tuesday's grueling five-city, 16-hour schedule.

The day, said McGovern, was the most hectic so far in the campaign "but the most productive, too, and one of the most satisfying." He talked with newsmen before boarding his plane jet for the flight from Cleveland to Pittsburgh.

"Sen. Kennedy was just observing that ordinarily you don't see crowds of that magnitude and enthusiasm this early in the campaign," McGovern said. "So I think it's a good sign. I kind of have the feeling that we're turning the corner in the last few days and are on the way up."

The South Dakotan and his Massachusetts colleague started the day in Minneapolis and, before it ended, they had appeared in person before more people than McGovern has in any other single day in his campaign.

According to newsmen's estimates, McGovern and Kennedy spoke to as many as 40,000 in downtown Chicago during the noon hour, 10,000-15,000 in Detroit's Kennedy Square in late afternoon, and about 7,000-8,000 in the Cleveland Arena Tuesday night.

The format has been the same in every city. Kennedy delivers a rousing, 10-minute attack on the Nixon administration, then introduces McGovern.

The Massachusetts senator usually reminds audiences that his brother, the late President John F. Kennedy, "came from behind" in his 1960 campaign to beat then-Vice President Nixon. He predicts McGovern will do the same this year.

Another fixture at the McGovern-Kennedy rallies seems to be the passing of the hat—or bucket. McGovern usually asks the audience to contribute 25 cents, $1 or $25, "whatever you feel you can give" to the campaign.

Nixon's Texas ally, Democrat John Connally and his "oil billionaire friends" are not supporting the Democratic ticket, McGovern likes to tell audiences.

DANIEL ELLSBERG
... the fighter

What makes Daniel Ellsberg fight?

Believes responsibility outweighs risks

'I had been willing to take the risk of being killed for my country when I was in the Marines and when I went to Vietnam for the Defense Department. It didn't strike me as an extraordinary thing to take these risks now.'

By RALPH NOVAK
NEW YORK—(NEA)—The horns or the crown of thorns or the halo you might expect to see topping Daniel Ellsberg's head aren't there. Instead, there is just thick, swirling, greying hair, stylishly but conservatively cut.

And Ellsberg sits quietly insisting, in effect, that it is no big thing to make the classified Pentagon Papers public, to label all the American presidents from Truman through Nixon as "liars," to be compared to everybody from Benedict Arnold to Nathan Hale, inclusive.

"People like to make me out as some kind of nut or fanatic or a knocker who can't find anything right with America," Ellsberg says. "It makes it easier for them to dismiss what I say that way."

What he says is that U.S. involvement in the war in Vietnam is criminal and should be stopped, and he has been saying it with increasing frequency since last summer, when he admitted that it was he who had given to the New York Times the top secret Pentagon Papers, a government study of American participation in the war originally commissioned by Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara.

Until last year, Ellsberg had been just another bureaucrat, a Harvard graduate with a doctorate in economics, a former Marine officer, an enthusiastic supporter of the Vietnam war while working for the Defense and State Departments as a consultant during the buildup of the American presence from 1964 to 1968.

Since the Pentagon Papers controversy, he has become a celebrity of the antiwar movement, publicly accusing himself of being a war criminal because of his participation in the planning of the war, literally shouting "mea culpa" and figuratively wearing a hair sweatshirt that has "You're guilty, too" stenciled on the front.

He is being tried in Los Angeles on federal charges of espionage and theft of government property but that trial has been recessed at least until October, pending a U.S. Supreme Court decision on the legality of government wiretapping of one of Ellsberg's attorneys.

Meanwhile, the passion with which he has thrown himself into the peace crusade has aroused criticism of his motives.

Conservative commentator William F. Buckley Jr., whose magazine, National Review, chided Ellsberg for touring "the radical chic circuit"—accused Ellsberg of acting with "extraordinary abandon" and indulging himself in a holier-than-thou attitude when Ellsberg appeared on Buckley's "Firing Line" television program.

"I happen to believe," Buckley said, "that there is no warrant for us to proceed on the assumption that everybody who has been involved in government with the exception of you and your friends is ignoble and that you are noble."

Even the far more sympathetic Murray Kempton wrote, in reviewing Ellsberg's new book, "Papers on the War": "That we have overlooked Ellsberg, the analyst, may to a degree be a fault of Ellsberg, the wandering evangelist."

Ellsberg's book is in fact an impersonal study of the origins of the war that is only secondarily concerned with his own conversion, which dates back to 1969 (when he first began trying to publicize the Papers, which he had worked on through Congress). Its main thesis is that the United States has not become involuntarily bogged down in the war—as the traditional "quagmire" analogy would have it. Rather, Ellsberg argues, each American president from Truman on has, because of short term political considerations, taken steps he knew would involve us more deeply in the war without accomplishing anything while he mouthed platitudes about making South Vietnam safe for democracy.

Critics seeking ulterior motives charge Ellsberg with lusting for glory, money and/or a way to expunge his guilt feeling (he makes frequent references to Nazi war crimes and the Nuremberg trials). He explains his personal ambitions this way:

"I feel that I was foolish but I have no conscious guilt feelings. I do feel a sense of responsibility, though. And while I knew I couldn't end the war, I did have some information that I thought might help end it. Not everybody has that opportunity or challenge and I knew I couldn't respect myself if I didn't do what I could."

"Maybe I overdo it sometimes. As my wife said the other day, we've been married two years and we haven't ever really had any fun. But right now I just want desperately to see the war end."

Boyleing it down

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Luck is like the weather. People complain but do nothing else about it.

Of course, it is hard to think what you can do about luck except to take it as it comes. You hear of up-and-at-em guys who say they make their own luck, but if you investigate these cases you find they did it on inherited money—or else, in its own good time, their bad luck finally came along and humbled their boasts.

Over his lifetime, the average man would probably say that his luck was fifty-fifty, and probably didn't tip the balance of his life unduly toward good or bad.

But some feel they were born under a curse and that luck never smiles but always frowns on them. They are born losers. How can you tell a born loser from one who only brags that he is?

Well, beyond doubt you're a born loser if—
Your shoestring breaks not once a year in an emergency but once a month.

The day after the firm you spent 30 years with finally names you a vice president it goes into bankruptcy.

You never got to show how smart you were in school because the teachers always called on the students to recite alphabetically—and your name would be Zimmerman.

You were too small to make the basketball team and too skinny to play football.

It was only after you had paid $7 traffic tickets for going through red lights that your doctor accidentally found out you were color blind.

You were the only kid in the neighborhood whose own dog bit him every day at feeding time.

Your first blind date not only got blind after one drink—she also got sick in your car. So has every blind date you've taken out since.

No matter how close you trim your toenails, they still punch holes through a pair of new wool socks the first day you put them on.

As a kid, you screwed up your courage just once to play hooky from school—and it turned out to be a public holiday.

You're crazy about red-haired girls, but have an allergy to them, and every time you go out with one you wind up with a weeklong crimson rash all over your body.

Your face reminds all the people you meet of someone they knew before—but it's always someone they disliked.

You are unable to enjoy yourself, because any form of pleasure makes you come down with a migraine headache.

When you try to get sympathy by telling your friends all your woes and how bad your luck really is, they decide that you're not a born loser but a born liar.

That's the born loser—he can't win from losing.

People in the News

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Julie Eisenhower, President Nixon's younger daughter, says she would be willing to die in combat to save the South Vietnamese government.

Mrs. Eisenhower, here for a speech Tuesday to a Kiwanis women's gathering, was asked at a news conference if she would "willing to die for the Thieu regime." She replied, "Yes, I would," and went on to defend Nixon's policy of gradual withdrawal.

She said Nixon "doesn't feel we can pull out of Vietnam now without supporting our troops and POWs." She also said South Vietnamese President Thieu was an elected public official and deserved American support.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Betty Friedan began teaching a Temple University sociology class with an admonition to her 115 students — about half male and half female — not to pit one sex against the other.

"We must now move beyond the rhetoric to a new human liberation," the women's movement leader said Tuesday. "I don't see a polarization of women against men, which at the moment seems to be too much the essence of the women's movement, but true liberation of both sexes."

The 51-year-old author of "The Feminine Mystique" plans to commute once a week from Manhattan to teach two courses on the revolution in sex roles and sexual politics.

Three wanted in murder case are captured

FREDERIKSTED, St. Croix V.I. (AP) — Police surrounded a house in this small town and without a shot captured three men wanted for the murders of eight persons at the Fountain Valley Golf Course.

Taken into custody without incident were Ismael Labeet, 25, Warren Ballentine, 23, and Raphael Joseph, 21.

Small states to benefit from Senate's revenue-sharing bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Small states would get more funds and suburbs would fare worse if the revenue-sharing bill passed by the Senate becomes law instead of the version approved earlier by the House.

The prospect, however, is for some sort of compromise to emerge from what is expected to be a long and difficult conference between spokesmen for the two houses.

The Senate, which passed the bill 63 to 20 Tuesday night, deleted House-passed provisions that would have encouraged states to impose or increase their own income taxes.

Hewing more closely than the House to President Nixon's concept of no-strings distributions to states and local governments, the Senate deleted requirements that the local funds be spent for certain broad categories of services.

Finally, the Senate wrote into the measure a whole new section designed to limit the flow of federal funds to the states in matching social-services grants.

Apart from these grants, the two versions of the bill would funnel the same amount of money to the states and local governments: $5.3 billion this year, increasing annually to bring the five-year payout to $29.6 billion.

But the proposed formulas for distributing the funds differ sharply.

The House version would distribute in the first year $1.8 billion to states on a formula based half on total state tax effort and half on state income taxes. This would reward those states imposing substantial income taxes of their own.

The House bill would allocate another $3.5 billion to cities and other local governments under a formula based on total population, urban concentrations of population, and need as determined by per-capita income.

Under the Senate bill, both distributions would be made under a formula involving population, but without a differential for urban population; tax effort, but with no premium on income tax; and need as demonstrated by per-capita income.

As a result of the formula shift, 17 urban industrial states would get less money from the Senate bill than from the House bill. But 33 smaller states would get more.

The Senate bill would send more funds to central cities, less to suburbs.

Both versions retain a provision that could lead in some states to joint collection of federal and state income taxes, and perhaps even a single tax return.

English, French votes termed 'an outrage'

WASHINGTON (AP)—High-ranking State Department officials say the British and French votes during the latest United Nations Security Council debate on Mideast violence were "an outrage."

The United States vetoed a Security Council resolution, aimed at Israeli raids on Lebanon and Syria, because it did not include condemnation of Arab terrorist acts which provoked the retaliatory attacks.

"It was unconscionable for the Western European allies to support that resolution," a top-level department official said.

The belated denunciation of Great Britain and France—the veto came Sunday night—is acknowledged by administration officials as part of a diplomatic arm-twisting aimed at toughening international efforts against air piracy and other terrorist acts.

The State Department officials claimed some success for this blunt method, but they conceded failure in other cases, particularly with France.

The mixed results are seen in the current sessions in Washington of a legal subcommittee of the International Civil Aviation Organization. The group was convened a week and a half ago to draft proposals for enforcing existing agreements against airplane hijacking and sabotage.

The French delegation has refused to go along with American demands for sanctions, including denying landing rights for any nation not acting against air pirates.

The Nixon administration is focusing attention now on air piracy because the ICAO meeting is still in session. But officials say this is just part of an over-all effort to end such terrorist acts as the Arab commando attack on the Israeli Olympic team.

CAPT. JACK LLOYD

Capt. Lloyd is speaker at Kiwanis meeting

U.S. Army Capt. Jack Lloyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lloyd, was Tuesday's guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club meeting. Kiwanian Larry Patterson arranged the program.

Capt. Lloyd, who is making the Army a career, has served four tours of duty in Vietnam and last year was chosen by the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce as one of the 10 outstanding young men in the United States. He is now working toward his Masters degree at Auburn University after which he will be assigned to the United States Military Academy as an instructor.

He has recently served as one of a committee of sixty-two armed forces personnel appointed to study the problems, make recommendations, and initiate programs concerning the establishment of a Volunteer Army rather than by drafting men into the services. Many of the suggestions of this committee are already being used to replace draftees with volunteers, and it was some of these changes that Capt. Lloyd discussed.

Those enlisting in Combat Forces are now given a substantial bonus on signing up, and may have a choice of units with a written guarantee of a minimum of eighteen months in that unit after completion of basic training.

Many of the volunteers are given up to three months temporary duty in civilian clothes in their home towns to "sell" their friends and buddies on the new Army. One man from Michigan is credited with leading 1,412 other men to enlist in the army in his three months of temporary duty at home.

"Naturally there are pros and cons on the question of a volunteer vs. conscripted army," said Captain Lloyd, "but if we can have a volunteer army without it becoming a mercenary force, and I am confident that we can, it will be a real fine part of the Armed Forces of the United States."

John Lloyd, father of the speaker, was the only guest at Tuesday's meeting.

NEW YORK (AP) — Having reached a high-level plateau built of $57 billion in assets divided among 11 million shareholder accounts in about 400 funds, the mutual fund industry now is reassessing its role, trying to chart its future.

Looking back down the hill is easier. There were only 312,000 accounts 30 years ago. Assets back then totaled less than $500 million. The industry had nowhere to go but up, and up it rose, lifted by the new affluence.

But now the growth has stalled. Purchases still are running at a rate of more than $5 billion a year, but redemptions have jumped from a long-term average of 7 per cent of assets to more than 10 per cent.

More realistic about the present problems or more enthusiastic about the future than Jack Rogers, the new vice president for product development at Anchor Corp., which manages $2 billion in seven funds.

Rogers has very few doubts that the small investor is becoming more sophisticated, Rogers states. People of ordinary means are seeking advice and counseling. They are searching for ways to develop and preserve small estates.

Mutual funds must recognize that the small investor is becoming more sophisticated, Rogers states. People of ordinary means are seeking advice and counseling. They are searching for ways to develop and preserve small estates.

Many fund investors are disillusioned by the erratic record of some — not all — funds. Others, it is said, have been forced to redeem because of taxes and unemployment. And others, having achieved goals, are simply cashing in.

The new view, as expressed by Rogers is that the fund management company is the connective tissue that binds together all the elements of estate planning.

The small investor is "avaricious" for investments advice and outlets, Rogers feels, adding that people of average means recognize the value of shrewd investments, especially in regard to inflation and taxes.

Now, he says, "if we put our imprimatur on a deal the dealers will be inclined to sell our product."

And if Rogers' reasoning is correct, the people will buy.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

There is a very good rule of bidding which is that you don't double a forcing bid unless you are sure of two things. The first is that you can defeat that contract; the second, that the information given by your double will help your partner, not your opponents.

West, a player in our rubber bridge game, really thought that his opponents were in trouble and it never occurred to him that South was going to make his two-heart contract.

Thus, when everyone passed his double he opened the king of diamonds and sat back to watch South try to wriggle off the hook.

South did quite a job of wriggling. He took the first trick with dummy's ace of diamonds; led a heart to his ace; took a short look at the ceiling; came to the conclusion that West held either 5-5-3-0 or 5-4-4-0 distribution and proceeded to give West the full treatment.

He led the jack of diamonds. West took his queen and led a spade. South cashed dummy's top spades and diamonds to get rid of two clubs. Then he ruffed dummy's last spade and led his last club.

West had to trump his partner's trick and lead away from his queen of hearts to let South make two overtricks.

What would have happened if West hadn't doubled? North would have bid something. If North and South reached a no-trump game they would make it but they would probably wind up playing some sort of part score.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

♥+CARD Sense♦

The bidding has been:
West North East South
Pass 1♥ 1♦ Pass
2♦ Pass Pass ?

You, South, hold:
AQ87♥KJ4♦32♣K984

What do you do now?
A—Pass or bid two hearts. It all depends on what sort of bidder your partner is. If he is likely to bid again, you had best pass.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of passing, your partner has bid two hearts over West's two diamonds. East has bid three diamonds. What do you do now?
